

Surrey film locations

An American Werewolf in London (1981)

The Black Swan, Effingham

The Black Swan doubled as the ominously named Slaughtered Lamb in this cult classic starring Jenny Agutter and Brian Glover

Bridget Jones: The Edge of Reason (2003)

Shere, near Dorking

Look closely at the final wedding scene and behind Renee Zellweger and co. you'll spot the pretty St James's Church where last year's Surrey Life carol concert was also held

Casino Royale (2006)

Dunsfold Park, near Guildford

Home to the popular BBC TV show Top Gear, Dunsfold Park, near Guildford, also doubled as Miami International Airport in the latest James Bond blockbuster, Casino Royale, starring Daniel Craig

Four Weddings and a Funeral (1994)

Betchworth, near Dorking

The beautiful St Michael's was one of three churches used in this classic romantic comedy that propelled Hugh Grant to international fame

Gladiator (2000)

Bourne Wood, Farnham

The opening battle scene of Ridley Scott's epic, starring Russell Crowe and former Surrey resident Oliver Reed, was filmed in Bourne Wood, near Farnham, where the wooded countryside provided the perfect substitute for the forests of Southern Germany

The Da Vinci Code (2006)

Fairfield Halls, Croydon – Keep your eyes peeled in The Da Vinci Code, which starred Tom Hanks and Audrey Tautou, and you might just spot the Fairfield Halls in Croydon, which was used to double as a lecture theatre

Harry Potter and The Goblet of Fire (2005)

Virginia Water, near Egham

Scenes from the fourth instalment of The Goblet of Fire were filmed on the banks on Virginia Water lake (incidentally, Harry's only surviving relatives, The Dursleys, live in Little Whinging, a fictional town located in Surrey...)

Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince (TBC)

The cast spent several days on location in Farnham for the filming of The Half-Blood Prince

The Holiday (2006)

Shere, near Dorking

Cameron Diaz and Jude Law were among a host of stars who descended on Shere for the filming of romantic comedy The Holiday. Several shops and the 15th century pub, The White Horse, appear in the film

Howard's End (1992)

Royal Holloway, Egham

Hollywood actress Sharon Stone was among the cast members who spent several days in the Founders Building at Royal Holloway which was used to double as a psychiatric Institute

Love Actually (2003)

The Queen's Stand, Epsom Racecourse

Everyone's favourite scene in Love Actually – the bit where they show the arrivals hall at Heathrow Airport – was actually shot at Epsom Racecourse